GOLD MEDAL BULBS AND PLANTS FOR FALL PLANTING

WE present herewith our annual fall catalog of bulbs and plants for fall planting, in which will be found the most complete list of the finest bulbs offered in America. This season we are offering several additional types of the newer tulips, and we want to call especial attention to the newest and most meritorious of all, the "Ideal Darwins." These are cousins to the best Darwins, which they resemble, but which they surpass in a greater variation in color and soft color tones, and in size and vigor as well. The newest and most sensational of all "The Grullemanni" are offered for the first time, also "Triumphs" and "Mendels." These will be found described and listed elsewhere.

To those who saw our exhibits at the National Flower Show in 1930 and our exhibits at our store, greenhouses and nurseries in 1931, and to our customers who have grown our bulbs, we do not need to enthuse on the quality of our bulbs, but those who may have missed seeing these wonderful flowers, we cordially invite to visit our displays this coming winter and spring, and to see the world's finest in bulbous flowers.

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED

This year too, the prices of the finer tulip bulbs have been greatly reduced. A comparison will show that in many instances the cost is only slightly over half of that of last year. In fact, bulbs have never been as low in price as they are this season.

Quality Always Counts—Keep in mind when buying bulbs that it is results that count, and that your best guarantee of satisfaction is to purchase them from a reliable source. Our policy has always been to supply our customers with the very best materials obtainable in every branch of our business. This is more essential with bulbs than with most any other article as it is most important that bulbs be properly grown and cured in order to produce their best. Bulbs of the same kind may look nearly alike to the average person, but may be very different to one with expert knowledge.

The bulbs we offer will be selected top size, and the very best obtainable.

Service—A complete horticultural service is available to all our friends and customers at all times. This is made possible by our large organization of trained experts in various departments of our business, who will cheerfully advise you on any problem.

“Ideal Tulips”

THIS new class of tulips is a development of the hybridizers art, the result of which is a more refined and quite distinct flower of the Darwin type.

The outstanding difference between Ideals and Darwins is in the softer color tones in the Ideals. In many of them the coloring is of the so termed pastel shades or tints, while some are pure white, in direct contrast with the deep and vivid colors of the true Darwins.

The size of flowers average larger and their habit of growth differs from the Darwins in that the flowers are borne on more wiry stems, making them appear more graceful.

Their lasting qualities both in the garden and after being cut is very marked. “Ideals” show a big superiority in this respect to most other tulips.

The blooming time is a week to ten days earlier than Darwins outdoors. In the greenhouse they may be forced with the earliest Darwins.

“Ideals” are of free and robust habit in growth and when planted they should be given a liberal amount of fertilizer, preferably old cattle manure, but lacking this bone meal or any standard fertilizer may be used. Close attention to this will bring surprising results.

THE Darwins are a development through hybridization of the old Bi-bloom types, and were first originated in France, but have been greatly improved and developed in Holland in the past twenty to thirty years. Darwins are as a whole the best known of the late flowering group, and are considered the "Aristocrats" of Tulipdom. Darwins do not vary in type and shape as much as the other species, but make up for this in their greater brilliance and intense colors, which range from the deepest violet, maroon and crimson to the most delicate shades of pearl and pure white.

Plant the bulbs as closely as desired, about six inches deep, before the sharp frosts harden the ground. Before snow comes to stay, cover well with leaves or straw. Remove this covering in the spring as soon as it is free from snow and ice.

The list of kinds we offer is most complete, all the newer meritorious varieties as well as all the best of the older kinds will be found in this list. All the bulbs we offer are "Top Size," the kind that produce results. We do not and will not handle the culls and inferior grades that are offered at sale prices.

Breeder Tulips

Jaune d'Oeuf

Louis XIV

Lucifer

THIS class comprises mainly the old original or mother tulips that were favorites in Holland centuries ago, and from which many of the newer types and species have been bred and developed.

They are very robust in habit of growth. Their size and great lasting qualities makes them unusually well suited for the garden.

The predominating colors are rich bronze, buff, brownish and purple tones, which is overlaid with a silvery sheen or bloom such as is seen on fruits.

Many of them are sweet scented. The time required for the development of the great flowers makes their blooming season later than most other kinds. They require the same cultural direction as the Darwins.

COTTAGE tulips as a class comprise a greater variation in form, and a larger variety of colors and shades than any other type of tulips. They are hardy and robust with long, slender, stiff stems, some of them gracefully drooping. The flowers are generally long and oval, others with sharp and pointed petals and many open up with gracefully reflexed petals. The Cottage Tulips surpass all others in richness of colors, every imaginable shade can be found among them. New, Rare and Unusual Tulips

WILD OR NATIVE TULIPS

THESE are termed Botanical tulips for the reason that they are the original native tulips, found in Asia Minor. They are quite unlike the better known tulips in form, color and size. Many of them are small flowered with thin, narrow foliage, others are large and of intense brilliance. They are ideal for naturalizing in the border or rock garden, as they will multiply and continue to bloom each succeeding season.

«GRULLEMANNI» TULIPS

The Grullemanni is the most recent creation in tulips, and predictions among bulb growers in Holland are that this new race will become the most outstanding class of all when sufficient quantities of bulbs are available.

They possess all the good qualities that can possibly be desired in tulips, size, hardness, and wonderful lasting qualities, a vigorous constitution and the habit of growth is very robust. The most distinct feature in Grullemanni tulips is their remarkable coloring. They can very well be termed bi-colored as they show a great variation in the individual flower. The large base or center color is usually deep violet blue or intense black surrounded with a zone of contrasting color. The petals of the large flowers are feathered in contrasting colors with the edges usually showing a broad band of the ground color. The inside usually shows a strong contrast with the outside of the flower, with a marked change and increasing loveliness during the development of the flower which is carried gracefully on a tall slender stem. We list only a few kinds for the reason that they are still very rare.

TRIUMPH TULIPS

These are a most interesting new race of tulips, the result of successful crossing of the so termed Single Early with the Darwin tulips. Among these will be found some very unusual colors and some that are unique.

They are very robust in growth, mostly with thick, firm stems, and with wonderful keeping qualities. Blooming time is about ten days earlier than Darwins and the height of most kinds may be called medium, on an average of twelve to eighteen inches.

Triumph tulips are most desirable for planting where earlier flowers are desired, or where a more extended period of bloom is wanted in the garden, planted with the later blooming kinds a longer season is assured.

We offer here a few of the very best sorts.

Kaiserkroon

THESE are the earliest tulips to bloom in the garden, and the easiest to bring into bloom indoors. Some may be flowered by the end of December if given proper attention. This class contains every hue and color, from the purest snow white to the deepest crimson.

Outdoor Planting—Any good garden soil prepared by spading to a depth of 8 to 10 inches is suitable. Plant the bulbs five inches apart for mass effect, and about five inches deep. The bulbs should all be planted at an equal depth where it is desired to have them bloom equally. Firm the soil well about the bulbs, and cover the beds with leaves or straw before severe cold weather sets in. As soon as snow and ice will allow, remove the covering.

House Culture—Plant six or more bulbs in a pot, set away in a cool, dark place (a good cool cellar is ideal) for a period of six to ten weeks to allow roots to develop. When quite a number of roots show through upon tipping out of pot, they may then be brought into the warm room and light, to bloom.

The approximate height in inches is indicated by a figure following the variety name.

Tulip Collections

OUR Bulb Collections continue growing more popular each year. We find that our customers who purchase these collections are pleased with them and buy again each succeeding year. The main reason for this, we believe, is that we put into these collections only the very best kinds and finest quality bulbs, and also because of a considerable saving in cost. While we try to make each collection alike, we find that some varieties do not sell as readily as others, due to price, etc., and in order to equalize our stocks we include many of the higher priced kinds in these collections. We make up all the collections we offer ourselves, and know that each one is just as represented. Every collection offered contains extra value and we feel confident will please the most exacting.

DIFFERENT TYPES OF NARCISSI

Barri—The cup or crown measures less than one-third the length of the perianth segments or petals.

Camparnils—Smaller flowers in clusters of three to six.

Incomparabilis—Cup or crown measuring one-third to nearly equal the length of the perianth segments.

Leedsii—Comprises all the low or short cupped crowns with white or silvery perianth, the crown white or slightly colored.

Poeticus—Flowers resulting from crosses between the Poeticus and Polyanthus Narcissus. Flowers in clusters, perianth petals fleshy.

Poeticus—Snowy white perianth with bright, short flattened crown or eye.

Trumpet—Trumpet or crown as long or longer than the perianth.

Evangeline

EITHER of these names applied to any individual kind in this group is perfectly correct, though it has become a somewhat established custom to term the large trumpet types as "Daffodils," and all the short cupped and cluster flowered types as Narcissus. In many sections the latter are more popularly known as Jonquils, but actually "Jonquils" form a rather small group, producing small flowers in clusters.

The embargo forbidding the importation of Daffodils a few years ago has resulted very favorably for America in that finer and better bulbs produced in this country are now available. Before the exclusion act became effective a few of the leading Holland Narcissus growers brought in their stocks of the choicest varieties, which, while in some instances are not available in large quantities, have added some exquisite new kinds that were not procurable before.

The bulbs which are being produced in America by these expert growers have proven superior to those formerly imported.

Daffodils are among the first flowers that greet us in the spring. Nothing is lovelier or more welcome than the first glimpse of a cluster of these, with their cheerful brightness displayed before the winter snows are quite forgotten, and before many other flowers have started to show signs of activity.

Narcissi prefer a partially shaded location, but will thrive and increase in most any situation. They will continue to increase and bloom from year to year.

They may be grown indoors quite successfully, treating them the same as early tulips, planting them in pots, but should be given more time for root development before being brought into the light. The proper time for this is when a considerable network of the white roots show through when tipped out of pot.

Our Narcissi come from the largest and most noted grower in this country. In the following list we offer a complete list of the choicest and most desirable kinds. The bulbs are all of the largest size and in perfect condition.

Dutch Hyacinths

GROWING Hyacinths indoors is a very simple matter indeed, and the pleasure derived in watching the development of the bright, cheery, sweetly perfumed flowers during the winter days is ample reward for the slight effort.

INDOOR CULTURE IN POTS—Use ordinary good soil with a little sand to make it more porous. Place a piece of broken crock over the hole in bottom of pot so as to insure free drainage. Fill in with enough of the soil so that the top of the bulb or bulbs is a little below the level of the top. Cover the top of bulbs with soil and firm so as to have at least a half inch below rim. Use 4- or 5-inch pots for the larger bulbs when planting them singly. A number of the smaller bulbs planted in larger shallow pots is very satisfactory. After being potted they should be watered thoroughly and then placed in a cool, dark place (preferably a vegetable cellar) for a period of six to ten weeks. This will induce root growth.

To ascertain the right time to bring them out of the dark, tip the pot upside down, tapping lightly so as to lift pot off soil. If several of the white roots show, it is then safe to bring them into the light.

Hyacinths may also be grown in glasses of water. The bulb should be placed so that the bottom just touches the water and enough water added occasionally to keep it at the proper level. Hyacinths grown in water should also be kept dark until roots 3 to 4 inches are developed. Better results are obtained by growing them as cool as possible.

OUTDOOR CULTURE—Plant the bulbs uniformly about 6 inches deep. Doing so carefully will insure them blooming evenly. When planting a larger bed, the best plan is to remove about 4 inches of soil, firm bulbs in place about 6 inches apart each way, and cover them firmly.

Crocus

THESE bright, cheerful flowers are earliest of all to bloom. They are often in bloom before the snow is gone. A few dotted about in clusters in the lawn is a most pleasing view from indoors. The colors come in bright golden yellows, deep blue to light blue, striped and pure white. Plant them anywhere. Do not plant too deep, two inches, not to exceed four inches is best. They may also be grown in pots indoors. Treat same as Tulips or Hyacinths.
